A total of 20 flights was due to take off for the United States Tuesday with 18 due in. Thousands of passengers were camping out at Heathrow in the bope of getting on a flight, though British Airways advised their passengers to wait at home.

Laker Airways, which bad five U.S. flights scheduled for Tuesday from London's second airport at Gatwick, said: "We are asking our passengers to check in on time but it looks as though most of our flights will not get away until late this afternoon."

British air controllers are to decide Friday on whether to take any action in support of their American colleagues.

Canadian air controllers went back to work early Tnesday after the government threatened fines of up to $5,000 and a possible year's jail. The controllers said that they were boycotting U.S. flights because the strike had made air lanes unsafe. Denying U.S. administration charges that the Canadians were acting out of industrial solidarity, union leader William Robertson insisted that the issue was "safety, not solidarity".

Israeli army trucks blown up

TEL AVIV, Aug. 11 (AFP) — Land mines, placed by a Palestinian commando, Tuesday, blew up two Israeli military vehicles in the Jordan River Valley, injuring nine Israeli soldiers, and Israeli military spokesman said.

The spokesman said that tracks left in the ground indicate that the commando crossed into occupied territory, got through Israeli security, planted the mines, and crossed back into Jordan. The Israeli-Jordanian sector has been relatively quiet for sometime. But recently, artillery fire has been hitting Israel from across the Jordanian side. The shelling was particularly intense during the recent conflicts bettween Israel and Lebanon. Israeli military headquarters has called the shelling "very serious."

Japan faces strike

TOKYO, Aug. 11 (AFP) - Japan's largest trade union, Sohyo, expects to call a 72-hour strike next month if the monthly pay for civil servants is not raised by 5.3 percent, it was learned here.

This raise was recommended last Friday by the National Personnel Authority. It should be retrouetive to last April, the agency said. With the automatic raise of 2.6 percent, the proposed increase would bring the average salary for Japan's civil servants to $967 a

These demands would cost the national hudget an extra 278,000 million yen a month and thus is expected to face government apposition. If it is refused, Sobyo has decided to have its members strike during the special parliament session scheduled for September.

Luc Pepin said that the 2,200 Canadian controllers had no right to pass judgement nn air safety conditions in other countries. Australian controllers, who also decided Monday to boycott U.S. flights, allegedly on the same safety grounds, returned to work after Transport Minister Ralpb Hunt threatened to stand down any controllers joining the boycott.

The Australian union is to take up the government decision in court. Meanwhile, in Spain Tuesday, civilian air controllers refused to clear two U.S. military transport planes to take off from Torrejon Air Base, some 20 kms north of Madrid.

The Spanish Air Controllers' Association, which decided to halt transAtlantic flights Monday, said that it was impossible to guarantee air traffic safety in the absence of the majority of a country's controllers.

In Hong Kong, the civil aviation department said that flights throughout Asia were normal Tueday, but that local controllers were "closely watching the strike," A department spokesman said that local controllers would make a decision "in the next few days", and that this would be taken in coordination with Tokyo, Taipei, Manila, Bangkok and other Asian capitals. Unions in Japan were discussing the issue Tuesday at a national executive meeting.

At Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport, an official said travelers to the United States were facing delays that stretched to more than 24 hours. Passengers at Orly Airport outside Paris found flights held np for eight hours or more. Swissair in Zurich reported heavy delays in services to and from New York. Travelers at Stockholm's Arlanda Airport were being turned away and told: "Try again

At Rome's Fiumicino Airport, hundreds of passengers waited for up to seven hours for flights to the U.S. "I would describe Fiumicino as one big mess," a spokesman

No flights to the U.S. from Italy were canceled, however. All airlines including the national carrier Alitalia said they expected that passengers would eventually get away. In West Germany, a Lufthansa spokesman said about 140 passengers were stranded at Frankfert airport when their flight to New York was canceled. But flights to Boston and San Francisco took off as planned, he said. Eleven Lufthansa flights were scheduled to fly to north America Tuesday, nine to the U.S. and two to Canada.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 — The U.S. State Department said Tuesday that the Middle East peace proposal put forth by Crown Prince Fahd "appears to be the same as the past Saudi Arabian position regarding Palestinian autonomy and peace settlement with Israel."

The spokesman said that the State Department did not have any advance notice of the proposal as outlined by Crown Prince Fahd. The complete text of the proposal was relayed to the U.S. State Department through published press reports from the Kingdom. The spokesman added that Saudi Arabia has not yet relayed the plan formally.

The State Department also acknowledged reports by Asharq Ai -Awsat that Prince Fahd would cancel his planned trip to the United States in October unless the United States changed its position toward the Palestinian issue. The spokesman reiterated, however, that a press report does not constitute formal notification to the U.S. government. So the United States would not have further com-

OPEC confirms talks Aug.19

VIENNA, Aug. 11 (R) — OPEC's Secretariat Tuesday confirmed that the OPEC oil ministers will meet in Geneva Aug. 19. Aspokesman of secretariat of the 13-member state. OPEC had earlier said: such a meeting would be held, to consider the present surplus in the world oil market and possibly try to reach a new pricing agreement.

Hamid Zaheri, spokesman of OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries), said Tuesday. "The majority have agreed to attend, and we are going to have a meeting." Zaheri said the gathering would take the form of a consultative meeting without a specific agenda, but the participants could turn it into an extraordinary price session. He said the meeting was likely to last one or two days. The emergency meeting has been sought by Nigeria, among countries whose sales have been hit hardest in the surplus-ridden marWestern oil company executives stressed

Mitterrand, a liar, claims Ali Rajai

TEHRAN, Aug. 11 (Agencies) — A day before the scheduled departure for bome of a final group of French citizens, tension between France and Iran suddenly increased when President Muhammad Ali Rajai accused Francois Mitterrand of lying.

In a message broadcast on Tehran radio, Rajai attacked the French president for granting asylum to ousted President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and for supplying Mirage fighters to Iraq. Rajai, referring to a Mitterrand message wishing him success in his new role as president, stated categorically: "There's noviously a lie there." He added: "1 am astounded by so much contradiction between the words and the acts of one

Meanwhile, a last group of 70 French citizens was preparing to leave Iran Wednesday afternoon at the request of the French government. With the departure of the 70, only some 30 French people, including two dip-lomats, 15 clergy and several elderly, would remain in Iran. A first group of 57 left Monday after having their departure put back for four days for financial and legal checks.

Talks were continuing between the foreign ministry and the French embassy on the situation of nine Iranian women married to French citizens, one of whom was prevented from leaving Monday because she had no exit visa. Iranian authorities bave said the women would be allowed to join their husbands shortly if they did not obtain the necessary visas in time for Wednesday's flight, French Vice-Consul Jean-Louis Riche said Tuesday.

Mitterrand asked French residents Aug. 5 in Iran to return home "temporarily" because of fears of "uncontrollable acts" that might endanger their security. On July 30 and 31, there were demnnstrations outside the French embassy in Tehran to demand the extradition of Bani-Sadr and Massoud Rajavi, head of the left-wing Iranian group People's Mujahedeen, who accompanied the former presdient to France. No incidents were reported.

The last group of 70 was scheduled to leave Tehran Wednesday aboard the regular Iran Air flight to Istanbul, Frankfurt and Paris. They were told to check in at the airport at 8 a.m. (0430 GMT) for the 12:30 p.m. (0900 GMT) flight.

A special check-in counter was to be opened, manned by a representative of the Iranian Foreign Ministry. Formalities Monday were said to have gone unusually

The Iranian press Tuesday resumed its attacks on the French government. The daily Keyhan accused "imperialist" France of "sucking the blood of dominated countries," while Azadegan devoted a whole page to an article entitled "France, cradle of liberty or refugee of terrorists and political losers."

Azadegan set as the new government's main goal the extradition of Bani-Sadr and Rajavi. The government, whose composition is to be announced Thursday, "must not allow our revolutionary people to wait for the death of Bani-Sadr abroad, as was the case of the shah," the paper said. Despite Rajars harsh remarks, presidential spokesman said the episode would have no effect on Wednesday's anticipated evacu-ation of French citizens. A spokesman in Rajar's public relations office, contacted by telephone said Mitterrand's telegram "has no effect at all' nn the second stage nf the evacuation. "It is only an answer to Francois Mitterrand's telegram to Rajai," said the spokesman, who declined to be identified.

Mr. Mitterrand, you have sent me a congratulatory message and wished me success at a time when your government's diplomacy has changed the French nation into a center of hell and a safe and secure place for elements of Iran's counterrevolutionaries." Rajai said in his own telegram, according to Tehran radio which broadcast the text.

Rajar's telegram, referred at length to a history of friendship and cultural ties between France and Iran, and he praised the French people for their 18th century revolution which like Iran's 1979 revolution, toppled a monarchy.

Ambassador Clovis Maksoud, the Arah League's U.N. observer, told a news conference he would inform representatives of potential donor states that participation in the force would be a "circumvection of the U.N. and... an unfrieodly gesture toward the Arab nation and toward the Arah states."

He named only Fiji and Colombia as possihle participants io the force, while ooting that a number of other countries had also been mentioned. Maksoud said: "We would like to initiate a diplomatic representation to them to see if they would desist from doing so, because we consider the cootribution of troops to the Sinai force constitutes a violation of the charter and a negation of the efforts by the U.N. and the international community to bring about an authentic and durable peace in the region."

Asked what would happeo if his pleas were ignored, he said: "Let us exhaust the diplomatic option, and if that is exhausted to no avail, then we would have to see at that time what might develop." The Egyptian-Israeli accord had called for the setting up of a United Nations force for the Sinai. But this was dropped in favor of a U.S.-sponsored force outside the U.N.

The United States is expected to supply just over half of the 2,000-man unit, under the terms of the agreement signed in Washington last week.

Sadat's plea for PLO meant to tilt U.S. policy CAIRO, Aug. 11 (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat returned home Monday from a weeklong trip to Britain and the United States where he had talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and President Ronald Reagan.

Upon his arrival in the summer resort city of Alexandria, Sadat told Cairo radio he would talk of the results of his trip in a speech to the people soon. Meanwhile, Egyptian Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali who accompanied Sadat was quoted by Cairo radio as saying that the presideot's trip was a 100 percent success."

Meanwhile, an informed diplomatic source said in Washington Monday Sadat appears to have achieved the major purpose of his U.S. visit, which was to get the Reagan administration to take a new look at the Palestice Liberation Organization in the search for an Arab-Israeli peace. "Sadat made quite obvious his trip was to push the PLO aod the Palestinians as much as possible," the source said.

The source, who didn't want to be identified, believes Sadat's purpose was to pave settlement envisioned by the 1978 Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt. The accords envision a role for Palestinians, but exclude mention of the PLO.

"He at least put the Palestinian question back on the front pages," said a State Department official, who also didn't want to be identified. "He has people focusing on it again, which is something be set out to do."

The diplomatic source concurred that Sadat may oot have changed any administration minds regarding a PLO role in the peace talks on this trip, but suggested the Egyptian leader may expect his ideas will flower over time."He apparently relies on public opinion in this country being more responsive to the PLO now," said the source. "He didn't succeed so far, but that doesn't mean he failed."

While Sadat said the PLO doesn't necessarily speak for all Palestinians, he also pointed out that the Palestinian mayors of many West Bank towns are PLO members.

Reagan late Monday decided in Santa Barbara, California, to suspend the delivery of two F-15s, set for Tuesday, and four F-16s, scheduled for Friday, until at least early next week. The suspension began after Israel June 7 bombed an Iraqi nuclear research center at

Some observers called the response moderate, and said Shamir did not want to compromise Prime Minister Menahem Begin's visit to Washington in early September. Begin is on vacation. But Yuval Neeman, a member of parliament and head of the opposition Tehiya Party (far-right), sent Begin a telegram calling for the prime minister to postpone his trip until the suspension is lifted.

One killed in Belfast as police raid homes, shops for explosives

BELFAST, Aug. 11 (AP) — A gunman riding as a passenger on a motorcycle shot dead a man in the center of Belfast Tuesday morning, police reported. The man, in his mid-50s, was killed as he walked to work nlong a sidestreet behind St. Anne's Protestant Cathedral, police spokesman said.

"We are examining a motorcycle which has been found abandoned nearby." the spokesman said. "It may have been the one used in the killing, but we are not sure." The shooting occurred as police and troops continued to comb shops and homes in the Roman Catholic Short Strand enclave of east Belfast for arms and explosives. The search in Short Strand, surrounded by mainly Protestant districts, began Monday evening after a British soldier was wounded by a guerrilla sniper in the district.

Police reported finding a cache of ammunition, gasoline bombs and homb-making equipment in an empty house in Short Strand after the Monday shooting. Parts of the area were sealed off. Police did not immediately identify the latest victim of this British province, where 2.1.35 persons have died violently mice sectarian strife erupted 12 years ago.

Britannia calls on Rhodes island

RHODES, Greece, Aug. 11 (AP) — The British royal yacht Britannia, with Prince Charles and Princess Diana aboard, made an unexpected call Tuesday on this resort island in the Aegean Sea, harbor authorities

The yacht dropped anchor off the Island, but harbor authorities refused to say whether the royal honeymooners would disembark. The arrival was kept secret by British embassy officials, who had suggested that the couple would probably not pay any further calls at Greek islands and that they were heading toward Egypt, where they would have dinner on board with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on Wednesday.

Over the weekend Prince Charles and Princess Diana made a stopover at the Ionian Island of Ithaca.

The conservative Athens daily Kathimerini reported Tuesday that the royal couple also called on the inhabited island of Delos and towed antiquities there. It added that Prince Charles and Princess Diana had renewed an invitation to Greek Premier George Rallis and his wife for a meeting on board the yacht, but 'the premier's burden of work did not permit him to accept the invitation." The daily said that the original invitation was made on the eve of the wedding when Rallis was in London for the ceremony.

church Monday when a priest saying requiem mass for IRA hunger striker Tom McIlwee criticized the prison fast that has cost nine men their lives.

The Rev. Michael Flangan, celebrating the mass in McIlwee's home village, said it was "disappointing when those who called the hunger strike should not end it. It is not too late, even after nine deaths, to end the

The priest criticized the British government for not granting concessions to the hunger strikers. But he said the guerrillas' leaders could "have spared their own members, families and the community continued suffering" caused by the five-month-old fast.

Irisb activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey and a half-dozen other women attending the mass stamped their feet on the wooden floor of St. Mary's Catholic church, and stalked out.

Later, a minibus carrying the McIlwee family home from the funeral attempted to evade two road blocks and crashed into a police land-rover. Authorities said paramilitary uniforms were found in the minibus and a man and four women were arrested. None of the McIlwees was detained, police said.

Flanagan's comments reinforced condemnation of the IRA by the church and Irish politicians for not ordering the hunger strikers to end their fast in the face of Lodon's refusal to make concessions on prison conditions.

Sinn Fein, the IRA's legal political front, contends only the Maze prisoners themselves can call off the fast, and says they have refused to do so. McIlwee, 23, died Saturday on the 62nd day of his fast. He was buried Monday beside his first cousin, Francis Hughes, who died May 12 after 59 days without food, McIlwee's eight sisters carried his coffin, draped in the orange, white and green Irish flag, and hooded IRA gunmen fired a military-style salute. Among the mourners was McIlwee's 21-year-old brother Benedict, who was given 10 bours' parole from the Maze where he is serving a 10-year sentence.

Red Brigades deserters live under death threat

ROME, Aug. 11 (R) — Red Brigades guerrillas call them "living corpses" and have promised to kill them. But the government has an interest in keeping the group of 200 frightened prisoners alive. The prisoners are all former urban guerrillas, most accused or convicted of serious crimes, who took advantage of a 1980 law to trade information in return for reduced sentences.

Officially, they are known as the "pentiti" (penitents) but the Brigades denounce them as "tragic puppets for whom annihilation is the highest act of humanity."

It took the vendetta-style murder last week of a young electrician called Roberto Peci to show just how for the guerrillas are prepared to go to stem the flood of informers. During the eight weeks they held Peci in a "people's prison," the Brigades found plenty of pretexts for killing him. But his real crime was being the brother of the most famous guerrilla turncoat to date.

The Brigades killed Roberto but their target was his jailed brother Patrizio and the others who have betrayed the "armed family." Patrizio Peci, at 28 three years older than Roberto, has lived a nerve-jangling existence in a succession of isolation cells ever since March 28, 1980.

Acting on his information, according to official sources, police raided a flat in Genova and killed four Red Brigades, including two members of the "strategic directorate." It was one of the greatest coups achieved against the Brigades in their 10-year history and tips from other informers led to dozens of arrests and the discovery of hideouts and arms.

But the mirder of Roberto Peci frightened the "pentiti" and now the government is under pressure to introduce urgent legislation to protect them and their families, and to offer more inducements to guerrillas who want to come in from the Roberto Sandalo, after Peci the most prominent defector from the guerrilla ranks, summed up the mood of the informers who are kept far apart from the estimated 2,500 political criminals now in Italy's overcrowded prisons. "The Red Brigades have won this battle by terrorizing us with that horrendous reprisal against Peci," he told the magazine Europe in a message from his top-security jail.

Sandalo, a former leader of the "frontline" group, warned that he might boycott upcoming trials where he is due to be the chief prosecution witness. "I'm frightened for myself and for my parents," he said.

Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni is wary of making promises to the families which cannot be kept. "Total protection is technically impossible. The state will do everything it can," he said in n recent interview. A senior aide to Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini said the government was hoping to raise the informers' morale by legislative measures which may be presented next month.

Broadly, the bill would give more protection to families and prisoners and modify sentencing for guerrillas who cooperated with justice, the aide said. "Whether they are changes of 45 degrees or 180 degrees is up in the air at the moment," he added.

The weakness of the 1980 law offering deals to repentant guerrillas is that it applies only to "supergrasses" like. Peci, who give crucial information leading to arrests and back it up with court evidence. The new proposals may offer a kind of amnesty to the small underground army involved in the periphery of political violence — such as those who provide false documents or safe flats.

At the moment, under the catch-all offense of "membership of an armed band," they can be jailed for nine years. The opposition Communists, in n package of measures presented last week, proposed sharp cuts in sentences for those who cooperate and an amnesty for minor guerrillas who turn themselves in

The Socialists, one of five parties in the government coalition, have floated a scheme to protect informers by helping them start a new life abroad. But convicted extremists may be one Italian export other countries can do without.

Whatever is included in the draft legislation, it will certainly anger the families of the hundreds of people killed by political guerrillas in Italy over the past decade.

Judges in cases involving informers will struggle to show elemency to men and women who once wanted to kill them. But ex n if the government overcomes these hurdles and takes steps to encourage and protect deserters, the informers will still live under this death threat issued by the Brigades last January: "From now on, the Pentiti will even be afraid of their own shadows, because they are only walking corpses."

French proposal for immigrants under attack

PARIS, Aug. 11 (AFP) — A French government plan to give votes to foreign immigrant workers here is facing wide-scale criticism. There are an estimated four million foreigners resident in France, and two-thirds of them are of voting age. They include 1,200,000 persons from North Africa, 850,000 Portuguese and 470,000 Italians.

Two French cabinet ministers recently revealed the vote-for-immigrants plan. Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson, on his visit to Algeris last week, said that "the government is seriously considering giving the vote to immigrants in local elections."

Monday Francois Autain, secretary of state responsible for immigrants, announced that this project is quite definitely one of the aims of the ruling Socialist Party, but that the government has not yet taken any decision.

The project could only be implemented by changing the constitution, which at present gives the vote only to a French citizen at national, regional and municipal elections.

A constitutional reform needs a threefifths majority in a joint meeting of the National Assembly and Senate and at present the government does not possess this majority, for opposition has an overwhelming number of seats in the Senate. But the reform could be carried out through a referendum.

Meanwhile, the authorities are working out measures to improve the status of immigrants by granting them to facilities to integrate into French society and by founding mixed special municipal associations to deal with their problems.

Canada pledges $1b to energy program

NAIROBI, Aug. 11 (AP) — After holding a tree sapling at a march to dramatize the world fuelwood crisis, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau on Tuesday pledged more than $1 billion over the next five years to energy development.

Delegates from more than 140 nations attending the first United Nations conference on new and renewable sources of energy enthusiastically applauded Trudeau's speech, in which he also announced several special programs to alleviate the energy crisis in the world's poorest countries.

Trudeau spoke after more than 700 energy lobbyists and Kenyan woman and children carried bundles of firewood and tree saplings through downtown Nairobi to dramatize the acute shortage of firewood, which more than 2.5 billion rural poor depend upon for cooking and heating their homes.

"In both North and South, there is a craving for national and international stability. We are learning, however, that our craving will not be satisfied unless we achieve a much higher level of international cooperation, a much higher level of coordina-tion of our economic policies," he said.

To safeguard poor states

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP) - Failure of industrial countries to cut inflation will make the world's poor countries poorer, with "profound social and political consequences," the head of the International Monet-

Canadian postal strike called off

OTTAWA, Aug. 11 (AP) - A 42-day national postal strike ended Monday night after the Canadian Union of Postal Workers voted 83.1 percent in favor of a new two-year contract.

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the 23,000-member postal union, said the workers would be back on the joh for the midnight shift. Robert McGarry, bead of the Separate Letter Carriers Union of Canada whose 20,000 members were laid off during the strike, said the post office had immediately recalled his members to pick up and deliver mail Tuesday. The new contract provides a wage increase of about 12.5 percent and several benefits.

Salzburg, Austria. The text of the speech was made available at IMF headquarters in Washington Monday.

He foresaw that if anti-inflation policies of the industrial countries are too weak, their recent slow economic growth will extend into the late 1980s. "Growth is the inevitable victim of inflation," he said. "The harsh experience of more than a decade has brought out clearly that inflation, through its distorting effects on the distribution of incomes and on the allocation of resources, has had highly disruptive effects on productivity and growth and has led to a large increase in unemploy-

Slow growth in the rich countries would risk a long recession tending to put up barriers to exports from poor countries, he said. Those countries need the income from exports to buy oil, food and the machinery to make things their people want, and to pay the interest on the heavy loans the richer countries have made to them.

De Larosiere noted that when husiness activity in the rich countries drops by 1 percent, export carnings of the poor countries drops by 3 to 3.5 percent. If the rich countries continue their slow growth, he said, it is uncertain whether poor countries will grow fast enough to prevent their people's low incomes from actually going lower. In a few of these countries the income of the average citizen is less than $100 a year.

"In these circumstances," he said, "It is difficult to see how the low-income developing countries could sustain their deht burden without a further sharp reduction in their growth rates in the second balf of this decade - a development which would carry with it profound social and political consequences."

The World Bank, the 1MFs sister organization, predicted Sunday that production in the poor countries will increase every year at a rate of 4 percent or more in the 1980s if things go well, compared with a rate of 3 percent in the 1970s. But its "low case scenario" foresees their rate of growth dropping back at first and only reaching 3 percent a year for the decade as a whole.

De Larosiere said that poor countries without oil will still have "relatively high" trade deficits through the middle 1980s, even if the industrial countries are relatively successful with their economic policies, even if oil prices do not rise more than inflation, and even if rich countries do not try barder to bold down imports from the poor countries.

Riyal, dollar keep firm

By J. H. Hammond

JEDDAH, Aug. 11 - The riyal continued to show strong firming trends Tuesday after yet another good performance by the dollar on the European exchange markets the same day. The American currency was relatively stable at high levels despite an easing of U.S. dollar interest rates to 18¼ - 18% from 19 5/16 percent levels. Local riyal rates for the same tenor were quoted at 19-191/2 percent on early morn-

The easing of dollar interest rates did not unduly worry the exchange markets which continued to be "bearish" on the dollar and shying away from most other currencies. With the exception of the yen, the dollar maintained most of its previous strength, particularly against the French, German and British currencies. Commentators seemed to focus more on political factors as an explanation for the dollar's continuing firmness. Basically, the political factors centered around Poland and the American decision to go ahead with the neutron bombs despite objections from European

In major currency news, the German mark continued to hover at the 2.56/2.57 levels over New York closings and European Tuesday trading. The British pound gained slightly to be quoted at 1.7720 levels from New York closings of 1.7610 with no sign of any major improvement in the position of that currency. The French franc was also relatively weak at 5.17 levels, while the Swiss franc hovered at 2,2030 - up slightly over the 2.21 levels of Monday. The yen continued to hold to its new-found stability at 237.00 levels after closing even higher in New York at 236.10 the night before.

On the local exchanges, spot riyal-dollar rates opened fairly high at 3.4250 — 70 and by mid-day the rate had stabilished at 3.4240-60. Local dealers reported some fairly moderate activity on the exchange markets, especially from commercial (noninter-bank) sales. Local importers were taking advantage of the fixed parity situation in the Kingdom to open some letters of credits in foreign currencies and the dollar, as well as some currency demands for boliday bound visitors.

Riyal deposit rates continued to remain firm and, in fact, were at a premium compared to the dollar over the short lenor. Most dealings were still concentrated in the short dates — three months and under and week-fixed rates were dealt at 22 percent levels. With some Bahraini-based OBU's - offshore booking units - paying as high as 24 percent from those local banks that had liquidity to spare. The short-term outlook is for rival deposit rates to continue firm unless the dollar linterest rates take a dramatic downturn.

NEUTRON TROUBLE

Soviet President Brezhnev is reported to be troubled by President Reagan's decision to go ahead with the production of the neutron bomb - although the Russians have been making an identical weapon for three years.

In France, the minister of defense extended an official welcome to America's news. France has already started producing its own version of the weapon about a year ago, and the new administration has made up its mind to continue with it.

But in Europe as a whole, the opponents still outnumber the welcomers. Denmark and Norway have come out with outright rejection and will not allow the new weapon to be stored on their soil. Holland and Belgium are opposed, and their parliaments will soon make their stand official. Italy's objection is over lack of prior consultation, although it has already agreed to station some of the new middle range missiles on its

The British, as usual since the end of World War II, appear to be agreeable to whatever the Americans want. Unlike the West Germans — the most important country in this context as the weapon will be mainly used on its soil if it is ever to be used — are angry because President Reagan did not consult them beforehand. In their case, this was seen as especially necessary as the parliamentary and extra-parliamentary struggle over the question of defense is still raging. America's move, as far as the Germans are concerned could not have come at a more inconvenient time.

The Americans, however, are adamant. Here is an effective. "clean" and cheap answer to the threat posed by Russian tanks in Europe, whose introduction to the European theater will have the additional advantage of strengthening America's hand as it sets out to negotiate with the Russians over reduction of nuclear armaments.

The weekly meeting of the Council of Ministers meeting, which was chaired by Prince Abdullah, second deputy premier and commander of the Nathmal Guard, approved, among other things, the establishment of a capital of nearly SR400 million. Al Medina carried as its lead story a statement by the Petromin Governor, in which he said that Petromin will spend SR50 billion on

Aug. 15 haunting Japanese

On a summer day in August, 1945, several million Japanese listened in stunned silence as their emperor announced that Japan had lost the war. Thirty-six years later, memories of that announcement, as well as of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki and the 3.1 million war dead, still haunt the Japanese, especially politicians. While most major participants in World War II have chosen to forget gradually, if not to forgive, Japan still indulges in an annual display of grief. Emperor Hirohito, who in 1945 as a then divine figure made the surrender announcement, will lead Japan as in previous years in a nationally-televisied memorial service for the dead on Aug. 15.

The service — on the anniversary of Japan's unconditional surrender to the allies — is the climax of an annual mourning period which over the years has remained virtually undiminished in intensity. especially among older generations.

During the past decade, the governmentsponsored Aug. 15 services in Tokyo's Budokan Martial Arts Hall have highlighted a controversy between conservative and left-leaning politicans over remembering the war dead. Some conservatives believe the fallen soldiers are heroes who died for the emperor and thus must be formally revered. Leftists see this attitude as glorifying war and heralding a return to militarism.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki recently went some way to accommodating the wishes of right-wingers inside his cone vative Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), which has ruled Japan since 1955. But he stopped short of bowing to demands that cahinet ministers should be allowed to visit the Yasukuni war memorial shrine, near the Budokan hall, in their official capacities.

He agreed in principle, however, that the government should designate a national memorial day for the war dead, despite protests from leftists. Traditionally, many LDP politicians rely on the powerful "Society of War Bereaved Families" for These members initiated an LDP resolution claiming that Japan must thank the war dead for belping to bring about the nation's economic prosperity. The reasoning behind the resolution has never been clarified. In rejecting the call for official visits by cabinet ministers to the Shinto Yasukuni shrine for 2.4 million war dead, including wartime leader Hideki Tojo, Suzuki cited Japan's 1937 war-renouncing constitution, drawn up under U.S.

The constitution hans state privileges for any religious organization. The Yasukuni shrine, built in 1869 for the worship of soldiers who died for the emperor, enjoyed state protection up to 1945.

During early post-war years, prime ministers did not visit the shrine for fear of stirring up a controversy over Japan's militaristic past. But they attended the non-denominational Aug. 15 services. But in 1976, the then Prime Minister Takeo Miki, a political dove, broke with tradition and visited the shrine in a private capacity to help woo his party's right-wing. Four years later, Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, a Christian, also paid a private Suzuki and about 17 cabinet ministers visited the shrine on Aug. 15 last year, again as private citizens. This was followed by protests that the government was going all-out to restore the shrine's official status. The LDP failed five times between 1969 and 1974 to win parliamentary approval for a hill designed to place the shrine under state protection.

The main opposition Japan Socialist Party (JSP) has claimed that the designation of a memorial day would be a step toward official government visits to the Yasukuni sbrine and its large grounds near the Several LDP members, including at least one cabinet minister, have called for a study on whether the constitution should be changed. Deadly contest of will

By Laurence Marks

TOXTETH, Liverpool -Everything good in the night-time; Everything goin' to explode at the right time,' sings a genial black 15-year-old as he walks home past a clump of Welsh policemen on a corner of Upper Parliament Street in Toxteth, Liverpool, The policemen gaze into space with stately indifference.

Further along the darkened street, a pair of Merseyside officers wearing plastic visors and glittering smiles grimly pad along exactly five yards behind two hlack youngsters, one of whom observing signs of strain in his companion, murmurs: 'Take it easy, man - just ignore them.' They turn down a side road, and the policemen

There are as many elaborate theories about what has been happening in Liverpool 8 as there are hurnt-out huildings. Some of them are couched in poetic metaphors such as 'the theft of the rage of the hlack young - the thieves being the media (who else?).

Chief Constable of Merseyside Kenneth Oxford believes that professional criminals are trying to drive his men out of the neighborhood. Some radical community workers say the rioters are making a calculated attempt to compel the authorities to replace Oxford, and that the sequence of riots will cease only when he leaves.

But what is visibly bappening on the streets every night is a contest of will between two groups of young men from similar social milieux — one in uniform, the other in jeans - engaged in ritualized, almost abstract gestures of aggression which have less to do with the functional requirements of policing than with the juvenile code of street

Recently, the contest exploded once again, leaving a taxi-driver in hospital with possible brain damage, a 19-year-old with his hack broken, and a congentially disabled man of 22 dead at the bands of a police hit-and-run driver.

There are now 800 officers from 12 different forces no duty every night in an area no more than a mile long, and three quarters of a mile wide. They patrol in units of five or six about 25 yards apart in some places, wearing colored armbands shire accents will take their men home, and then - if not before - the tribes of Toxteth will resume their deadly warfare.

A youngster at the Charles Wooton Center (named after the victim of a 1919 race riot) says that, until the first wave of riots four weeks ago, the police were on top. 'Unless you were looking for trouble, you steered clear of them. Even staring at them was risky: they might call you over and start questioning you.'

But after the police had been routed with petrol bombs, the youths assumed a bolder air, and the foot patrols lost their psychological ascendancy, fearing instant reprisal if they were heavy-handed. (This coincided with Oxford's first period of lowkey policing.) Now, said the lad, the police were trying to get hack on top.

A popular myth — that young people in poor neighborhoods are hostile in principle to the presence of policemen, whom they see as agents of the economic institutions that are oppressing them has recently been confirmed as nonsense in a local study entitled Receiving Juvenile Justice.

In the view of many thoughtful citizens of Liverpool, the only answer is to mobilize the communities themselves.

Individual parents may have lost control of their young, hut community groups acting collectively can exert considerable moral authority. They will only do this, however, if they see the police are behaving justly and with good sense. This would require a radical change in attitudes — for instance by making the criterion for promotion in the police force not the number for minor offenses but the consistent maintenance of order and community support. — (ONS)

Professor jumps from window!

ATHENS -The curious case of a Hungarian professor who was seriously injured jumping out of a window at his embassy in Greece has caused a definite chill in relations between the two countries. The professor asked Greece for political asylum but later changed his mind. Now the Greek government has demanded a full explanation of statements by the Hungarian amhassador implying that Professor Kalman Szabo was pressured into asking for asylum and was mistreated in a Greek hospital. The incident overshadowed an official visit to Greece by Hungarian Premier Gyorgy Lazar. Szabo, a Greek literature specialist at Budapest University, was due to act as interpreter for the

But on the opening day, the 41-year-old professor tumbled from a first-floor window in the embassy, a modern apartment huilding in a secluded Athens suburb. He was taken to the KAT Emergency Hospital with a hroken pelvis, broken right arm and liver damage.

Although a Greek government spokesman initially denied that Szabo had requested political asylum, a Greek woman reporter slipped past police to interview him. She reported that Szabo had signed the application for asylum with his left hand as he lay in bed.

Two days later, when Premier Lazar had left, the Ministry of Public Order announced that Szabo's request had been approved. The decision came as no surprise, for Greece has a long-standing policy of granting asylum to political refugees from Eastern Europe and the Middle East,

No explanation was given of the leap from the window, but a Greek friend of Szabo said he was depressed and nervous after attending an academic conference in Greece in June and was unwilling to return to Hungary because of family problems.

His domestic difficulties were apparently resolved with remarkable speed. His wife Evangelia, the daughter of Greek political fugitives from the civil war in Greece 35 years ago, flew to Athens at once. To the doctors' consternation, she made several visits lasting up to three hours to her husband in the intensive care unit, accompanied by Hungarian embassy officials.

The Greek government reacted sharply to the Hungarian account of the incident, which denied that the professor ever intended to leave his country for good. A written protest was handed to the Hungarian ambassador in Athens, Istvan Dobos Hungarian relations had appeared to be on the brink of blossoming until Premier Lazar's visit and the Szabo affair. Now diplomats expect the chill to eral Chadli Klibi's reaffirmation that Crown Prince Fahd's statement bas invalidated the claim that there is no alternative for the Camp David accords. Al Jazirah said in a lead that Prince Fahd's 8-point proposal has disappointed President Sadat of Egypt, while Al Bilad led with world press comments on the crown prince's

In a front-page story, Al Jazirah reported that President Sadar's visit to Austria has been canceled because the Austrian authorities discovered arms with Palestinians at Vienna airport. Al Nativa reported improved security conditions in Lebanon, while Okaz reported French President Francois Mitterrand as saying that the Kingdom's 8-point proposal provides a basis for discussion of the Middle East crisis.

Newspapers frontpaged an official denial that the AWACS aircraft supply information to other sources, in addition to Saudi Arabia. The official confirmed that these aircraft work only for the Kingdom and are manned and supervised by Saudi Arabians alone.

Newspaper editorials continued to comment on Prince Fahd's statement. Al Medina noted that the crown prince's 8-point peace proposal has roused international concern but, at the same time, it has placed Israel in an embarrassing position before the world. His proposals can achieve success only when Israel renounces its intransigent nature and Menahem Begin ceases to believe that killing and destruction will continue to stop the establishment of a Palestinian state. The paper endorsed the crown prince's view that the U.S. ought to make a radical move outside the Camp David accords, so that Israel withdraws from occupied territories and the Palestinians are able to establish an independent state of their own.

On the same subject, Al Jazirah observed that Prince Fahd has placed before the world a peace proposal that sums up the Arah will to resolve the Middle East tangle. The proposal symbolizes Arab official and popular desire to reach an equitable solution that guarantees the legitimate rights of the people of Palestine including the establishment of a Palestinian state, the paper said. It added that the crown prince's statement has shifted world attention from the Camp David accords to some realistic points which reflect the Arah spirit and endorse the Palestinian commitment toward their homeland.

In an editorial, Al Bilad said that Prince Fahd's peace plan has received considerable attention by political observers in European capitals, as it has put forward the elements of a real peace in the region. The elements contained in the proposal do not please Israel because they expose its evasive methods, aggressive and intransigent attitude toward the Arabs, the paper said. It added that the 8-point proposal has unmasked the dimensions of the Zionist role in rejecting peace attempts in the

Discussing the same subject, Okaz stressed the need for a political harmony among the Arah leaderships, and said that this harmony should be given top priority to bring success to Saudi Arahia's plan for peace in the region. The paper added that the American administration is at present in the process of reframing its strategy in the region, and it is sure "to give us due weight if we remained a closely-knit group".

Commenting on the U.S. and Soviet tactics, Al Nadwa said that the two have constantly hoodwinked the world that they are trying to stop proliferation of nuclear arms and to ensure world security and stability. However, political observers have noticed a big difference between their claims and real actions which have brought the world to the brink of a nuclear war. Both Washington and Moscow have continuously tried to dominate the

One of the mothers who stayed in her house, however, claimed that her baby was taken by force. Gladys Azuero, a pretty, illiterate eighteen year old from Bulucaima, says she went to the Social Welfare Institute for help when she found she was pregnant — and was sent to Roberto Vasquez. "He took me to Agustina, , and said he would give me money because he wanted a baby, and he promised them money. When my baby was born I felt tender for him and decided to keep him. But Agustina took him, though I fought. Robert never even gave me the money. If I could get my baby back be would be in my arms now.

Colombian Market Brisk Over 2,000 Colombian children are adopted by foreigners every year, about 700 going to the U.S., and the rest mostly to Europe, especially Sweden, many are genuine cases of orphaned or abandoned children, for as Social Welfare Institute Director Juan Jacobo Munos pointed out in a recent newspaper interview, 30 percent of births in Colombia are unwanted.

At least three officials of the institute appear implicated in marketing off the children they are supposed to be caring for. Advertisements appeared in Spanish papers touting for clients. Severe controls have now been imposed on adoptions, making the legitimate procedures even more difficult and time-consuming than before. It was precisely the long, drawn-out paper-work and cross checks of proper channels that encouraged the black-market operation. One New York couple who were just about to leave for Bogota when they heard of the scandal had heen told they would be met at the airport, and would be on a plane with their child in two days - for $10,000 and without any of the background, health and financial check-ups usually required. The full legal procedure can take three months or more.

A Swedish couple has already received their new baby through the correct channels. But now the new restrictions prevent them completing the paperwork. We are terrified we will not be allowed to take our baby home," said the blonde wife, near tears. Japanese soldiers asked to surrender

By Robert Whymant

TOKYO (G) — Japanese soldiers may still be hiding in the Solomon Islands, unaware the war ended 36 years ago, reluctant to surrender, or simply preferring their jungle habitat to Japan. Reports from Vella Lavella, 240 miles north of Guadacanal, have led officials bere to believe that one or more Japanese servicemen are at large. A search party is to be sent by the Health and Welfare Ministry tu look into the reports

Seven years ago a former second lieutenant of the defunct imperial Japanese Army was per-suaded to leave his jungle hide out in the Philippines, surrender to his superior officer and return to Japan. S. Africa rewrites ban list

By Patrick Laurence JOHANNESBURG, (G) — One of South Africa's best known hlack woman, Mrs. Albertina Sisulu, is free to speak to the press for the first time since 1964, but another prominent black woman, Mrs. Fatima Meer, remains "gagged" under South Africa's Internal Security Act.

Mrs. Sisulu, wife of the African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu, and mother of the banned Presideot of the Media Worker's of Association Zwelakhe Sisulu, and Mrs. Meer, a widely known sociologist and outspoken critic of official race policies, were among the many people affected by the latest reshuffle in the fate of banned people.

The banning order on Mrs. Sisulu, first imposed in 1964 and renewed several times since, was allowed to expire, but the ban on Mrs. Mcer, imposed by after the 1976 unrest, was renewed. Banning orders on 24 people were lifted at the same time hut one was imposed for the first time on Mr. Charles Nkaqula, who succeeded Sisulu as president of the writers association.

According to figures collated by the Insti-tute of Race Relations, the latest changes mean that there are about 140 banned or restricted people in South Africa. Reasons are seldom given for the lifting or imposing of restriction orders.

In a defiant statement to the Rand Daily Mail, Mrs. Sisulu backed her son, a detainee under the terrorism act as well as a banned person, in his fight against "apartheid, oppression and unjust laws." She said: "He was been a source of inspiration to us hecause we share more or less the same views."

The Sisulu family has been in the forefront of militant opposition to white minority rule in South Africa. Apart from her busband and son Zwelakhe, another son, Max, and a daughter, Lindiwe, were both detained while in South Africa. They have since fled the country.

In another newspaper interview, Mrs. Sisulu attributed ber fortitude during her banning to hope. She said: "Hope kept me going. Hope that one day we will be free and the knowledge that the struggle is going on...I can't remain quit. I have no fear.'

Mrs. Meer, who has written incisive articles on African nationalism and who is a close friend of Mrs. Winnie Mandela, the banned wife of the imprisoned ANC leader, Nelson Mandela, is engaged in legal action to get her banning order declared invalid.

Among the point made by Mrs. Meer's lawyers in their defense against charges that she contravened her banning order are that the original order is invalid because the former minister of justice, J.T. Kruger, did not hold an inquiry to establish that she was a threat to law and order and that his order was some of the contacts, the best documented s, involve South African marketing for viet diamonds. Others reported are aimed sharing information about mining technol-, and the marketing of certain strategic nerals in addition to the diamonds.

Common Goal High Prices

As the major competitors on the western irket for such important commodities as id, coal, asbestos, iron, manganese and platinum, Preturia and Moscow share a common interest in seeing a high or at least a stable price for these products, vital to both their economies. So despite their ideological distaste for each other - and Moscow's support for economic sanctions against South Africa in international political forums condemning apartheid - calmer and friendlier relations prevail in the discreet world of international finance and business.

It would be going too far to say there is collusion between South Africa and the Soviet Union to fix mineral prices, especially in the case of gold. But their covert contacts undoubtedly provide them both with valuable information and contribute to what financial people like to call "orderly market-

Diamonds are forever and the South Africans would like to market them for everyone forever. For decades, maintaining a controlled world supply of diamonds has been the prerogative of De Beers Consolidated Mines. This is the diamond section of Harry Oppenheimer's Anglo-American Corp., the world's largest mining empire headquartered on a quiet, tree-lined street in this city's

For many years the Soviet Union, secondlargest producer of gem diamonds in the world, bad an open contract with the London-based, De Beers-controlled Central Selling Organization to market their diamonds. Although this was abrogated in 1963 for political reasons, a working relationship still exists.

Oppenheimer bas privately told people bere that his cousin Philip Oppenheimer, who heads the Central Selling Organization, regularly travels to Moscow and that De Beers Executives meet the Soviets in London. Earlier this year a British Broadcasting Corp. The Soviet Union is oot the only ideological foe of South Africa to deal with the Central Selling Organization. Marxist-run Angola, which is virtually at war with South Africa because of its support for anti-Pretoria insurgents in Namibia, also sells its diamonds through the group's pipeline.

Mining And Technical Services, a Liberian-registered company whose board has several directors formerly associated with De Beers, has recruited expertise and tecbnological aid since 1977 to belp the Angolan diamond industry reocover from its disruption during the civil war there in 1975-76, according to a British diamond expert, Timothy Green.

It was was at the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow that the curtaios were accidentaly raised on other acts in the Kremlin-South African connection. In the audience watching a performance of the opera "Boris Godunov" one night last November was one of Oppenheimer's right-hand men, Gordon Waddell. As chairman of Angola's Johannesburg Consolidated Investments, Waddell directs operations of the world's largest platinum mine. A former son-in-law of Oppenheimer, Waddell is also on the fourman operating committee that makes top day-to-day executive decisions for the Anglo American Corp.

Waddell was accompanied by another Anglo executive and two unidentified Soviet officials. He told an inquisitive BBC reporter who spotted him that be was "just passing through."

"I would find that explanation quite difficult to believe," said William Gutteridge, professor of international studies at Birmingham's University of Aston and an expert on Soviet-South African relations. "You don't just pass through Moscow and get good seats at the Bolshoi hallet by accident," Gutteridge said in a telephone interview.

Platinum Pricing of Interest

South Africa and the Soviet Union supply 95 percent of the world's platinum. Sooth Africa's major mines sell on long-term contracts. But the Soviets, who produce about one-fifth of what South Africa does, sell their platinum on the free market. A tacit agreement for the Soviets oot to accept a freemarket price substantially under the South African contracted prices would be in the long-term interests of both parties, observers

"There are some cases too, for example, in chrome, of the Soviet Union indirectly contacting South Africa on prices," he added. But "the evidence on platinum is pretty clear-cut ... I would not be surprised if they are not also discussing mining and refining techniques."

Control 80 percent of Gold

While there is no evidence of direct discussions on gold sales between the two countries, which together supply 80 percent of this precious metal, there are ample opportunities through intermediaries to learn about each other's intentions.

The South African Reserve Bank, which last year sold more than $10 billion worth of gold, and the Soviets' Zuricb-hased Wozchod-Handelsbank deal with the same bullion dealers and Swiss banks. In addition, Anglo-American owns 29 percent of the London-based Consolidated Gold Fields, a gold-mining finance house that besides owning profitable gold mines in South Africa is regarded as the expert source in the west on Soviet gold production.

The company's executive director, Michael Beckett, visited Moscow for discussion with Soviet officials last September that he said were to gather information for his company's, annual bullion survey and to discuss gold mining technology. He also acknowledged that his company regularly speaks with officials of Wozchod-Handelshank.

Christopher Stolz, senior deputy director of the South African Reserve Bank, agrees his country and the Soviet Union "have common interests in marketing operations of gold' that could lead to similar sales policies. But he denies any formal or informal discus-

The bank does, bowever, "get a lot of information, quite good information sometimes" on Russian sales through banks and dealers used by both countries in New York, Frankfurt, Zurich and London, Stolz said.

Ian Wright, a former executive of Consolidated Gold Fields and now a London stockhroker specializing in gold, said in a tele-phone interview that "the strings or ties between the Soviet Union and South Africa are very slender indeed, but I'm quite sure some kind of link has been made."

Wright speculated that any tacit agreement might be along the lines of agreeing on a floor price below which both countries would not

Despite the cries of injustice from the tiny band of American rugby players, the pres-sures are building up both, inside and outside the U.S. for the tour to be called off.

Last week's decision by the Mayor of New York Edward Koch not to allow the third tour match to go ahead was seen by antiapartheid groups as a first step toward victory, even though it was taken because he could not guaraotee the tourists' safety.

Koch's decision was understandable giveo the level of disturbances which have accompanied the South Africans during the first two weeks of their New Zealand tour.

In the long term, the consequences for American sport and even the U.S. economy are significant. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) recognized this and asked the U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC) to urge the organizers to rethink their position. Brabenec had service breaks in the fifth game of the first set, and the seventh and 11th games of the second set, but each time Drewett broke serve and then held to remain in control of the match.

The Caribbeangolf course that's worth a trip

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (WP) — Golf has never been terribly important in the Caribbean. There are a few courses — Fountain Valley in St. Croix, Dorado in Puerto Rico and Sandy Lane in Barbados immediately come to mind - that are truly distinguished and rate with the world's best.

But mainly the golf courses of the Carib-bean-are scruffy little affairs with ill-teoded fairways and greens that have a nasty way of attracting the local population of goats, making putting particularly bazardous. On one island, Curacao, the "greens" are made of

Despite a recent growth of Robert Trent Jones clones on several islands - the Dmoninicao Republic, Guadeloupe, Martinique - the level of golf and golf courses is relatively sub-par. Only Puerto Rico and Jamaica offer a variety of courses. Most islands are content to keep the local ninehole course in a shape akin to the local cow pasture, which it niteo is when men aren't walking aloog hitting that little white ball with those funny sticks.

As Margaret Zellers notes in the most recent edition of "Fielding's Caribbean," when writing about the oew Robert Treot Jones course in Martinique: "The fact was that, for a while, there were so few people oo the island who knew anything about golf (an American passion, but not necessarily the only sport for the rest of the world) that finding people to staff the course, tend greens and the like turned into a major project."

With such problems and with such a lack of top-flight golf courses in the region, it is no surprise that most golfers who wanted to combine an island holiday with a golf holiday usually looked to Bermuda, with its nine courses, or to Hawaii, which has some superb new golf resorts, places like Wallea on Maui and Princeville oo Kauai, to go along with: established courses like Kaanapali oo Mani. Even the out-of-the-way Hawaiian island of Molnkai, which has only one resort hotel, bas its own course, and a good one at that.

But that heart, dear golfer, for your time has come. The Caribbean has added what may well be the finest golf course in the entire region, a course that will make your hearts pound, your golf shoes quiver with anticipation, your backswing high and true and your drive dead-solid-perfect.

Mahogany Run it's called, 18 holes nf loveliness nestled in perhaps the least likely spot in the Caribbean for a course. It's located on St. Thomas, an island that is so Case makes early exit

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 11 (AP) -Amateur Ernie Fernandez of Puerto Rico upset fourth-seeded Gianni Ocleppo of Italy 5-7, 7-6, 6-3, on Monday, the opening day of the $75,000 Western Opeo Tennis Championships at Harold Clark Tennis Center.

In another opening day upset, No. 8-seed Ross Case of the United States fell to Rod Harmon (U.S.) 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Defending champion Geoe Mayer (U.S.), the fifth-ranked tennis player in the world, is the No. 1 seed. Wojtek Fibak of Poland is seeded-second, while 1979 western winner Stan Smith is the third seed. All were to see action on Tuesday.

In other opening round matches, John James of Australia defeated Juan Farrow (U.S.) 6-4, 6-4, Ian Harris (U.S.) defeated Tom Cain, (U.S.) 4-6, 6-2, 6-3; Chris Dun'-(U.S.) defeated Mark Vines, (U.S.) 6-3, 6-1; Michael Kures (U.S.) defeated Jai Dilouie (U.S.) 6-3, 6-2.

Borg withdraws

MONTREAL, Aug. 11 (AP) — Secondseeded Bjorn Borg will not be playing in the $200,000 Canadian Open men's Tennis Championships as his wife is ill, tournament officials said Monday.

Marianna Borg arrived from Sweden at North Shore bospital in Manhasset, New York, more than a week ago for an operation to treat a kidney ailmeot. Borg is remaining at hilly you need four-wheel-drive shoes just to walk most of it. It's an island most people thought was too mountainous, with terrain too uneveo to allow the construction of a course of championship caliber. But it has been done, and the result is a vahalla for golf-ball salesmen.

Mahogany Run is a tight, short (6,350 yards) course that places a premium on accuracy. The longest holes, the 15th and the 18th, are both a respectable 575 yards, but the rest of the course is peppered with sbort par fours and tough par threes.

The best and most difficult bole three 14th, the masterpiece of the course design by George and Tom Fazio. It plays 195 yards from tee to green, and you bad better hit it 195 yards, because between the tee and the greeo there is nothing but the surf of the Caribbean, a few curious parrot fish and the craggy rocks of a St. Thomas Cliff. This hole, much like the famous 16th at Bermauda's Port Royal, is all carry. Short and you're in the sealong and you're in the dense thicket surrounding the small green.

The majority of the course wanders through thick groves of mango, mahogany and cashew trees, up and down hillsides like a goat path. So steep are some of the hills that golf-cart paths wind up the incline in series of switchbacks, curling around the hillsides. It isn't until the 13th that you see the ocean and the neighboring islands and face the fierce wind that can blow a ball off course. Then it's into the big finishing boles, the long ones, that finally allow you to let off a bit of steam with your driver.

At the end of an afternoon on the Mahogany Run course, after climbing hills and hitting over the booming surf and thread-ing the right bougainvilles-lined fairways, you know you bave played a round of golf nn: one of the toughest courses in the Caribbean.

On 315 acres, Jim Armour and his frieods have fashioned a coodominium development and resort that rivals neighboring Caocel Bay on St. John as the Virgin Islands' best. Accommodations, looking like sugar cubes set in the deep green of the St. Thomas lushness, climb up the hillsides io oeat stacks.

For the non-golfer, Mahogany Run offers tennis on terraced courts (only one 'is available now), horseback riding on trials perfumed by the scent of a thousand frangipani bushes, swimming in a pool that sits on the highest point oo the porperty and offers stunning views across to the British Virgin Islands, and sunning at nearby Magen's Bay, included in any list of the world's more beaut-

Still to come at the new development are an equestriao center, the restoration of a 175-old Danish Stone Farmhouse that will be the project's premier restaurant and also serve as a clubhouse for the tennis village and the completion of a number of lavish private. homes that will be dotted throughout the landscape.

Tavare helps Kent avert innings defeat

LONDON, Aug. 11 (Agencies) — Chris diff with three second innings wickets standing. Barry Lloyd so far taken a career-best match against Aus. ralia later this week, saved Kent from humiliation by their neighbors Sussex in the English County Championship Monday.

Tavare, a flop in the first innings, came good when Kent followed on at Eastbourne 206 behind. His brisk 72 hleped take them within nine runs of averting an innings defeat and with six wickets standing. Chris Cowdrey, son of masetro Colin, upstaged teammate Tavare - by one run. His unbeaten 73 was top score of the day in county matches.

One run behind Tavare was David Bairstow's 71 for Yorkshire against Hampshire. England discard Bill Athey helped in a stand of 111 and was 64 not out when Yorkshire declared at 205 for six to make up for the loss of Saturday's play.

Hampshire, still hoping to snatch the championship, were ungrateful. They ended on 150 for no wicket. Not exactly without loss, however, as West Indian Test opener Gordon Greenidge went off with an injured wrist after hitting 53 (a six, nine fours). Middlesex's West Indian opener Wilf Slack punished the Warwickshire bowling attack for the second time in three days at Lord's. Following his brilliant 130 on Saturday, Slack, who has scored 815 runs at an average of over 100 in the past month, moved confidently to 61 not out and, with England captain Mike Brearley (48 not out), featured in a second successive century opening stand.

Championship leaders Nottinghamshire, trying to make up for time lost on Saturday, were dismissed for 170 at Worcestershire. But they then shot out the home side for 146, with Eddie Hemmings returning six for 66. Former England player David Steele took seven for 85 for Derbyshire against Leicestershire - it included the wicket of his brother John - but at 45 for four in reply, Derbyshire are still 151 in arrears.

Ian Botham was out for 49 to the last ball of the day to boost Northamptonshire's hopes of victory over Somerset at Weston. Somerset closed at 177 for six in their second innings - 145 ahead - after Nigel Poppwell's five for 33 had helped to dismiss Assume you're in four spades and West leads a club. You can see when dummy appears that there is no way to avoid losing a spade, a heart and a club, so all your thoughts are turned to losing only those three tricks, if possible.

You are sure to fail if the trumps are 4-1 (or 5-0), regardless of what you do, so you start by assuming they are divided 3-2. You likewise assume that the bearts are not divided 3-3, for if they are you have no problem - the contract will come home on any reasonable line of play. Your chief concern should be to protect against a 4-2 heart division. Accordingly, after winning the club lead and cashing your ace of trumps, you play a low heart! In the actual hand, this play succeeds against any defense. Whatever happens next, you draw a second round of trumps, cash the A-K of hearts, and ruff the heart nine in dummy to limit yourself to three losers. Note that you cannot achieve this result if you start by cashing the A-K of trumps and then playing the A-K and another heart. West wins, draws dummy's last trump, cashes the jack of hearts, and waits for the setting trick in clubs. It would also be fatal to start with three rounds of hearts. West would win and play a fourth heart for East to overruff the dummy. The hand demonstrates the importance of planning the play on the basis of workable assumptions. Declarer shouldn't spend his time worrying about a 4-1 trump break, or a 5-1 heart break, because these render the contract unmanageable. Instead, he should think along positive lines and assume only those distributions that permit the contract to be made. To think otherwise is self-defeating.

Allies to get warhead in hours Poles give strike alert

Neutron bomb keeps peace, America says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (Agencies) — Neutron weapons stockpiled in the United States could be delivered to troops in Europe "only a few hours" after allies agreed to accept them in the event of a crisis, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says.

The United States, therefore, will not be penalized strategically by keeping the weapons at home in recognition of European "sensitivities" to having them deployed in their countries, Weinberger said Monday.

The depense secretary defended in a news conference Monday the administration's decision last week to resume production of the weapon, which was halted by former President Jimmy Carter in 1978 following an outcry of protests from NATO allies.

Asked if the neutron weapon increases the chance of nuclear war, something the Europeans are known to fear, he replied: "No, I think it makes it much harder to launch a conventional war and thereby helps preserve the peace.

"The more deterrence we have...the more ways in which we can be correctly perceived as being able to inflict unacceptable damage to any attacker, anywhere in the world, the more likely we are to maintain the peace,"

Weinberger said the Soviets were upset because the neutron weapon "gives us the greatest deterrent against their kind of warfare, overwhelming masses of infantry and tanks." He said the Soviets now have 45,000 tanks compared with the 11,000 NATO tanks in central Europe.

"This is the kind of imbalance that they have now produced in the central European front and it is essential that there be some effective defense weapon against it, all of which we hope will never have to be used," he

White House spokesmn Larry Speakes said the United States will consult European allies before sending any of the new weapons overseas but acknowledged their opinions were not sought before Reagan decided to resume production.

Speakes would not say whether the United States plans to eventually seek permission from allies to store the weapons in Europe.

In The Hague, about 50 demonstrators Tuesday harred the entrance to the United States Embassy in protest against the U.S. decision to produce neutron bombs. The demonstrators, participants in an international march for demilitarization, held several banners, one of them reading: "The Neutron Bomb: A Simple Arm for the Extermination of People."

Police watched the demonstrators, but did not intervene. The protest followed a smaller march Monday in front of the embassy, in which 30 youths expressed opposition to U.S. President Ronald Reagan's decision. Other demonstrators assembled in front of the

The Netherlands government has said the decision to produce the bomb was an internal U.S. matter. But former Defense Minister Max van der Stoel said he regretted the decision. The Netherlands Parliament last February opposed deployment of the weapons on Dutch territory.

At Oxford, England, Denis Healey, deputy leader of Britain's opposition Labor Party, Tuesday criticized Washington's decision to huild neutron warheads. "Russia is bound to respond (to Washing-bombs for herself, or by retaliating against their use in war with her existing nuclear weapons which will destroy property and contaminate ground," Healey told a party meeting. Britain's ruling Conservative Party, unlike Labor, has reacted sympathetically to the Washington decision,

The Soviet Union Monday launched a seeond angry attack on President Reagan's neutron decision and said he was playing with fire.
The government newspaper Izvestia said the move was a particularly dangerous one in the present international elimate. It repeated a warning that Moscow would now feel com-

LISBON, Aug. 11 (Agencies) - Portuguese Prime Minister Francisco Pinto Balsemao handed in his formal resignation Tuesday, denouncing the permanent and systematic opposition to his seven-month-old government from within the ruling democra-

Balsemao emerged from a 90-minute meeting with President Antonion Ramalho Eanes saying he would carry on as premier until a solution to the political crisis was found, shifting the responsibility of forming a new government to those who ousted him from office. President Eanes, a central figure in the quarrel between Balsemao and his hard-line critics, would issue a communique, the prime minister said.

While Eanes has the power to reject a prime minister's resignation, the chief executive was expected to approve Balsemao's move and clear the way for Social Democratic Party choice of a successor later in the Soviet ships enter Baltic

BRUSSELS, Aug. 11 (Agencies) -More hig ships are joining the Soviet Armada in the Baltic for naval exercises, NATO military sources said Tuesday. It appeared to be the largest concentration of warships in the Baltic since World War II, they said.

The 17,000-ton helicopter-carrier Leningrad, from the Black Sea fleet, was about to enter the Baltie Tuesday, escorted by the 8,000-ton Kresta elass cruiser Admiral Isachenkov, the sources said. The two vessels are expected to join about 50 ships already in the Blatic including the 38,000-ton aircraft carrier Kier and several large amphibious units.

NATO military sources see no direct link between the exercised and the current unrest in Poland. But they say the armada off the Polish coasts adds to the pressure on the troubled Warsaw Pact country. The scale of the exercise, involving for the first time units from the Soviet Union's four fleets, meant it must have been prepared years in advance, they said.

The 23,000-ton service ship Boris Chilikin is also on its way to the Baltic, the sources said. It is one of the first Soviet purpose-huilt ships supplying the fleet with oil, ammunition, spares and food. The NATO sources said the landing exercise was a prelude to bigget exercises. The Western alliance, and also neutral Sweden, are closely watching the situation in the area, they said.

S. Pacific states demand self-rule

PORT VILA, Vanuatu, Aug. 11 (AFP) -Fourteen south Pacific nations ended their annual forum meeting here Tuesday which was marked by strong attacks on French policies in the region. France came in for heavy criticism over its continued nuclear testing in French Polynesia and for its continued rule of such Pacific territories as New

A delegation comprising some representatives of forum members — Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Fiji and Vanuatu - will visit France early next year to seek clarification of the French government's intentions on its south Pacific territories.

New Caledonia was singled out as a special case for discussion and the territory's Kanak Liberation Front was present at the meeting to lobby support for its cause.

The Cook Islands, one of the region's mini-states which have played an assertive role at the meeting, sponsored a resolution adopted by the forum that commits member states to a firm stand on proposed nuclear dumping by Japan in the Pacific, at the meeting of Commonwealth heads of government in Melbourne next month.

interest. Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania Tuesday told the central committee the party should mobilize its forces to stop the situation from deteriorating. The official PAP news agency said there was no more room to maneuver and it was now time for energetic action to curb strikes and social anarchy. But a Solidarity spokesman in Warsaw said strike alerts, mainly over food shortages, had been called in several regions including Silesia, Luhlin, Badom and Bielsko-Biala and the Rural Solidarity Peasants' Union was preparing protest actions. Tuesday's central committee session, the first since last month's party congress, heard a gloomy report on the state of the economy from Deputy Prime Minister Janusz Obodowski. He said a 17 percent drop in production had been recorded in July, compared with the same period last year. Coal production was down, there were problems with energy and no improvement in cattlehreeding was in sight, he said.

Obodowski blamed Solidarity in many cases for blocking government initiatives to resolve the crisis. He said the government planned to concentrate on stepping up exports, wage all-out war on profiteering and increase retail prices to encourage produc-

As the committee met, sections of the official press called on the government to reverse the decision to grant work-free Saturdays following a wave of strikes earlier this year. Even the liberal Zycie Warszawy said: "It is difficult to agree with a decision increasing the time off work in a period when the state of the economy requires intensive efforts to overcome the crisis and the greatest difficulties in saving the market."

Solidarity announced Tuesday that a 'good offices commission' including the Polish primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, and other distinguished figures had been set up. The commission, which also includes liberal journalist Stefan Bratkowski, head of the Journalists' Association, and Professor Giesztor, president of the Academy of Sciences, is clearly hoping to offer to mediate between the government and unions.

Solidarity reported in its daily news bulletin Tuesday that preparations were going ahead for a march on Warsaw in protest against the persecution of people for their political beliefs. The government has said that it will not tolerate "so-called converging marches' where protesters arrive from different points.

Good Morning

By Jihad Al Khazen

I was recently in a London restaurant one of a grade I shall call "popular", where there's no question of reservation and where you often find yourself having your meal in the company of complete strangers. And this was the situation which developed at a table nearby, where two Middle Eastern looking ladies sateating, who were later joined by two

One of the men turned to the woman next to him and, ,very eivilly, I thought. tried to start a conversation by remarking that the two ladies looked foreign and asking where in fact they hail from. "Iran." said the woman, somewhat curtly. And are they living here or just touring, the

And it was here that the lady blew up, 'We're here," she said quite loudly, "to subsidize the impoverished British people." Now this, I thought, was too much, The woman perhaps had the right to resent the man talking to her uninvited. She might also have really disliked being in Britain; where she might be staying against her will, given the trouble in her own homeland. But that was no way to answer, Here comes trouble, I thought, as I prepared to do my Kurt Waldheim act the moment the hostilities started.

And had the incident taken place in France or Italy. I'm certain my services would have been called upon very soon. No foreigner would have been allowed to get away with insulting the host country in this way. But this was Britain, and here they do things differently.

"Did you hear what the kind lady just said?" the man turned to his friend saying the words loudly for all to hear. "She has come all the way to help our ailing economy." Then he turned to the woman, who already looked as though she thoroughly regretted her outhursts:

"And did our Foreign Office invite you here to perform this kindly deed?" She shook her head negatively, quite confused. "Oh, Isee," he went on, "You came quite uninvited. All the way from that distant land. No one bothered to ask you, and vou still came...

The woman was hy now almost in tears as she left her table hurrying for the door. Game, set and match, I thought, And with hardly any blood drawn.
